

I. READING

Young novelist by Max Brady

Suzanne Todd has just won the Best New Writer prize for her first novel, Roadrunner. The idea for the book came from her own travels – four years ago she decided to give up her job in a bank to go round the world on her own for a year.

'I was tired of doing the same thing every day and wanted to find some excitement before it was too late', she says. 'I felt so frightened sitting on the plane that I was counting the weeks until I could come back! But I saw many wonderful things, and in India I met Richard, who is now my husband.' Back home, she started writing Roadrunner. This novel is about Tara Roberts, who decides to give up her job and travel round the world, and it sounds like an autobiography. 'Tara goes to the same places as me and feels the same about them, but I don't have her wild way of behaving or attract danger as she does,' Suzanne explains.

Suzanne's second novel, called Sailing, shows Tara in different amusing situations and, unusually for second novels, is just as entertaining as the first. This is even more extraordinary when you consider that since the birth of her son, Suzanne has had to fit in time for writing around looking after him. 'I have to be better organized now,' she says.

Roadrunner is going to be made into a film, a third and final novel about Tara is planned, and Suzanne is still only 29. How does she feel about her future? 'I just take things as they come,' she says with a smile.
